

The British Columbia Outlook

A slight economic rebound and moderate growth are expected in British Columbia (B.C.) following unprecedented economic impacts caused by the COVID-19 pandemic, according to projections from the B.C. Economic Forecast Council.

Since the economic low point of the pandemic, B.C. has seen steady job growth with unemployment remaining below the national average. The provincial government has focused on investments designed to get British Columbians back to work, support infrastructure, services and activities to promote the growth needed for B.C.'s economic recovery. *

Government of Canada job market research points to growth in the following areas within the province of British Columbia: education, finance, heavy equipment operation, information technology and mining. **

British Columbia's recent job growth

This section looks at recent labour market information for the province and highlights some roles that have shown growth, according to Government of Canada labour market data. **

Education

Elementary and secondary teacher assistants support students, and assist teachers and counsellors with teaching and non-instructional tasks. They assist in areas of personal care, teaching and behaviour management under the supervision of teachers or other childcare professionals. They are employed in public and private elementary, secondary and special needs schools and treatment centres.

Financial services

Payroll administrators collect, verify and process payroll information, determine pay and benefit entitlements for employees, maintain accurate payroll records and provide payroll information within a department, company or other organizations. They are employed by payroll administration companies and by organizations throughout the public and private sectors.

This province-by-province report is a resource to help new Canadians on their journey to achieve career success and find a career path full of growth and opportunities.

Download the report

